

Report Card for Minister David Orazietti – the Ontario Government’s minister responsible for consumer protection and oversight of Tarion

Grade: F - Minister Orazietti is failing to provide “oversight” of Tarion and failing to adequate consumer protection for Ontario’s purchasers of newly built homes.

Today, June 24, 2015, marks one year since Minister Orazietti was appointed Ontario’s minister responsible for consumer protection, and oversight of Tarion (Ontario’s mandatory, monopoly new home warranty program). To date, Minister Orazietti has not responded to CPBH about any of the issues that CPBH has brought to his attention (details attached). Meanwhile, Minister Orazietti has been communicating as if he is a member of Tarion’s marketing department, rather than the Minister responsible for consumer protection. For example, he refers to “working with” Tarion, as if he/his ministry have a partnership with Tarion. Minister Orazietti appears to be content with very slow, incremental change at Tarion, while far too many Ontarians are suffering from inadequate consumer protection from Tarion.

Tarion’s 2014 financial statements reveal that Tarion pays approximately $250,000 annually to the Ontario Government for an “oversight fee” but there appears to be no oversight. Tarion won’t answer most questions, and Minister Orazietti has thus far refused to answer questions about Tarion. Minutes of meetings between the Minister/Ministry and Tarion are not available. A culture of secrecy prevails, which is one of the key reasons that Bill 60, the Tarion Oversight and Accountability Act, tabled by MPP Singh on Dec. 10, 2014, is urgently needed. Minister Orazietti’s staff have advised that Minister Orazietti won’t support Bill 60, but he refuses to share his specific concerns about Bill 60.

Despite many appeals from consumers and CPBH, and numerous media reports since he became Minister, it appears that Minister Orazietti is much more interested in protecting Tarion/builders than Ontario’s purchasers of newly built homes. Minister Orazietti’s failing performance has been added to the growing list of serious problems with the Wynne Government. Some suggest that Minister Orazietti is biding his time until he can get shuffled off to another portfolio. Over the past decade, on average, ministers in this Ministry have changed each year.

Ontario consumers urgently need transparency, accountability and appropriate action from Minister Orazietti -- and the Wynne Government. The purchase of a home is the largest purchase most consumers make. It is clear that new, meaningful legislation is urgently needed.

Note: It is imperative that Minister Orazietti/his Ministry provide answers to CPBH, the public and to Ontario’s MPPs related to the issues/questions raised before Bill 60 is debated.

** E-mail from Minister Oraziotti - On 4/16/2015 10:03 AM, InfoMGCS (MGCS) wrote:

This is in reply to your emails in recent months regarding, among other issues, your support for Bill 60, the Tarion Accountability and Oversight Act. I appreciate the effort you have put into advocating for stronger consumer protection, in both your correspondence and in meetings with my staff.

The ministry is reviewing all information related to Tarion, including correspondence received from homeowners and the recent private member's bill. The ministry takes its oversight role seriously and appreciates suggestions for ways to increase the effectiveness and public transparency of organizations that administer legislation on its behalf, including Tarion.

Given that substantially the same issues are being raised in your emails, the ministry will not continue to repeat responses that have previously been given. Let me assure you that all correspondence, whether addressed to me, the deputy minister, the assistant deputy minister, or other staff in the ministry, is read and considered. We are aware, through your ongoing correspondence of many years, as well as your several recent meetings with staff in my office, of your long-standing concerns with Tarion.

The ministry will continue to work with Tarion to support its various initiatives to improve the services it provides to new home owners. These efforts — which include increasing the amount and breadth of warranty coverage, balancing Tarion's board composition, more public outreach, and improvements to the complaint resolution process — have been outlined in previous letters to you. As noted above, the ministry will focus its responses on correspondence that raise substantively new issues.

Tarion has demonstrated a commitment to continuous improvement, and over time we have seen a decrease in the number of cases requiring Tarion's intervention. In 2008 there were over 7,100 requests for conciliation. In 2014, that number has fallen to 4,300. In that same period, actual conciliation inspections which needed to occur have decreased from more than 3,000 to 1,000. In 2014, out of over 365,000 new homes under warranty only about 1,000 (0.27%) required a site visit from Tarion. I am pleased with the progress that Tarion has made, and look forward to seeing continued improvements for homeowners in the future.

Going forward, Tarion is in the process of adding more information to the Ontario Builder Directory, including a notification when Tarion has issued a notice of proposal to revoke or refuse to renew a builder's registration or refuse to grant registration to a new applicant. As referenced in the government's 2014 budget commitment, Tarion is also working with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing on an approach to curb illegal residential building. I am pleased with the progress that Tarion has made, and look forward to seeing continued improvements for homeowners in the future.

Thank you and please accept my best wishes.

Sincerely,

David Orazietti
